

the leader in tribunal training

Dennis Callihoo is a lawyer with 23 years' experience in the areas of Corporate Counsel, Business law, Human Resource Development, Adjudication and Government Relations. He is a graduate of the University of Alberta and of Osgoode Hall Law School (1989). Dennis has had a long relationship with the Academy through sessional teaching at a number of Universities (University of Lethbridge, University of Alberta, Athabasca University, McEwen University), has served as a Senator for the University of Alberta and has completed a six year term (June, 2013) with the Council for Aboriginal Initiatives at the University of Alberta. He also has served on numerous Boards including the Legal Aid Society of Alberta, The Alberta Law Enforcement Review Board, The Boyle Street Co-op, Oteenow Employment Society and the Edmonton Community Legal Centre. He is currently an Alternative Dispute Resolution Mediator with the Canadian Human Rights Commission.