

Adrian Wright, CTAJ™

Adrian is a long time lawyer, adjudicator, and mediator. He worked for many years in the Northwest Territories. He now lives on the West Coast. He has

- adjudicated claims of sexual abuse and physical abuse involving Indian Residential School survivors in the Indian Residential Schools Independent Assessment Process
- decided and mediated human rights complaints for the Human Rights Adjudication Panel of the Northwest Territories
- advised and represented
 - Registered Nurses Association of the Northwest Territories and Nunavut in registration, professional conduct, and other cases
 - Workers' Safety and Compensation Commission of the Northwest Territories and Nunavut

He has decided cases, advised decision makers, and both challenged and defended administrative decisions in court.

He is now both the Curriculum Development Coordinator and an instructor for the Foundation of Administrative Justice.